Eye of a liar: Professional con artist and neurologist talk about the 'magic' of perception

BY MELLESA BURGAN
MARCH 15, 2009

Related Links
1. Steven Shubin
2. Chicago Cultural Center
3. Science Chicago
4. Ars Scientia

---

Top Stories

On student health, non-profit's job is uphill
Future in Chicago unclear for undocumented workers
In Hispanic soccer league, Japanese team stands out
More than the Bible: Blacks say church should have role in social issues, politics
Alarming: Calling, Fraudulent, Illinois politics as usual – but not if panel does its job
Community organizing in Uptown: From telephone trees to the Internet

Great Exploit: Why American moviegoers are fleeing theaters
Incarcerations' impact on law firms to expand staffs
Who needs an English garden when a prairie style one is, um, right under our noses
'I think there are other things to get rid of in your life before you get rid of self-fulfillment'
I've screenings help teens get to the heart of their cardiac risks
Offshore wind farm on Evanston's horizon

Chicagolife

End violence by fighting? That's good at fighting gym
More than the Bible: Blacks say church should have role in social issues, politics
New tenants at your birthplace? Global warming may be to blame

Video

Does the gas really have to be premium?
Economy may not, but auto show goes vroom
As the economy worsens, animal shelters fill up

Science

Study shows mental illness common, ignored in young offenders
Ad campaign on public transit celebrates gay men's health
Embryonic stem cell research divides religious 'right'

Business

Andersonville a safe haven for some in real estate debacle
February retail sales down 0.2 percent but not as bad as forecast
Management shakeup at Hewlett-Packard's gives new CEO second chance

---